

Mission Statement

Design Philosophy

Walnut was established in 2009 out of pure enjoyment of designing and implementing quality projects with a goal of providing excellent customer service. We want our clients to say, "This is what we have always wanted."

What sets Walnut apart from the crowd is that we have big firm expertise with creative design credentials, major project management experience, and sophisticated 3D software capabilities coupled with small firm customized service and reasonable pricing. We are nimble enough to handle projects as large as your one-stop shop for a major new construction or as small as your flexible advisor for a do-it-yourself (DIY) bathroom remodel.

We believe the keys to meeting our clients' requirements:

- (1) work with the client during the planning stage with 3-D modeling and photo-realistic renderings so the client is making the most informed decision possible; and
- (2) intently listen to the client without predetermined ideas that may shadow the design process.

The necessary keystone to a successful design is concise construction documents and specifications. Walnut prides itself in working with both the client and the contractor in creating construction documents that are not only complete and permitted but can also be easily implemented in construction. Clear communication is paramount in all phases of construction and we are there every step of the way.

Each project has a distinct list of design elements that needs to be addressed, defined, and molded into a successful project, and each successful design must be fluid and dynamic. Therefore, throughout the entire life of the project we constantly compare construction techniques and look for cost savings.

The harmonizing result of our approach is a superior building with a longer life cycle, quality of livable environment and a satisfied client.
